In this bold and provocative manifesto, Martine Rothblatt cites current academic opinion and research to argue that the answer is yes - and that the time is right for a new sexual revolution. In The Apartheid of Sex, Rothblatt makes a case for the adoption of a new sexual model that accommodates every possible shade of gender identity.

The Apartheid of sex : a manifesto on the freedom of ...

- in a book aptly titled The Apartheid of Sex. It is an apartheid indeed when we are segregated from the moment of birth (literally) into male and female. Rothblatt's main argument against this apartheid of sex is quite simple: sex is a complex continuum from very male to very female (sexual continuumism) rather than a simple duality of male or female (sexual dimorphism).

Dividing people according to gender is as nonsensical as racial apartheid. This manifesto shows that traditional male and female roles are defined neither by genetics, nor genitals, nor biology, but by social attitudes.

Apartheid of Sex: Manifesto on the Freedom of Gender ...

I have also almost finished reading the book Apartheid of Sex by Martine Rothblatt, which is both an amazing and shocking manifesto. Essentially the Apartheid of Sex states that sexual dimorphism is wrong; the two distinct manifestations of male and female in reality is essentially non-existent and that societal systems of male and female distinction is destructive; effectively these distinctions could be considered "sexual apartheid". It states there should be no two sexes, rather a ...

Apartheid (South African English: [ˈaːpɑrtʰeɪt]; Afrikaans: [aˈpɑrtʰeɪt], segregation; lit. "aparthood") was a system of institutionalised racial segregation that existed in South Africa and South West Africa (now Namibia) from 1948 until the early 1990s. Apartheid was characterised by an authoritarian political culture based on baasskap (or white supremacy), which ensured that ...
