This book is a very insightful collection of what transpired during the development of so many race cars over the years. It is from the view of Mark Donahue and captures his drive to always find an unfair advantage in racing. I didn't give it 5 stars because it lacks something. I cannot put my finger on what it lacks, but it is a little dry.

God inspired book. My husband is a police officer, after reading this book I am sure he has ptsd. He has left me and 3 teenage children. I love the title of this book, if only we could all live with the attitude that we have an unfair advantage in Christ, truly believing that the battle has already been won.
